cording to his wishes, and when he brings his new charge home he hads everything apparently to his liking. The belief that her lover has brigotten his vews drives The Lattle Sarage into a paroxy-m of rage, but on hearing the truth of the matter she determines to arrange affairs to suit herself, which she does, and everything works out satisfactorily after a number of highly-samisling scenes. Mis Michell gave some admirable acting last night, and so satisfied was the audience that she was called before the curtain at the close of each ac. Miss Mitchell's company is a good one, and the acting of Messra. Shewell, Russel, Scott, and Miss Carrie Weatt was drightly appreciated, "The Little Savage" will be repeated to night.

dresses will be delivered by Bishop E. G. Andrews, D. D. Warren Choate, esq., and others, on the connectional interests of Metbodism, and should the weather be favorable a large audience is expected to be in attendance. John T. Mitchell, esq., is president, and Rev. C. Herbert Richardson, secretary of the union, and its affairs are under the direction of an executive committee of twelve members from the different charges of the M. E. Church in the District of Columbia. The subject of discussion for the meeting this evening is one that has much interested the Methodism of the large cities in the country of late, and especially in Washington, where so large a proportion of the population is of a transfert character, the need of a closer alliance among the various M. E. churches has been felt to be a matter of considerable importance.

George L. Hammeken, has commenced a suit in equity against John Hancock for an injunction and discovery. This suit grows out of the famous Mexican award. The bill recites that an award of $170,678.50 was made in favor of Hammeken against the Remobile of Mexica, and that of this amount some $65,000 was paid him during disling. Since his decease an installment of $12,500 has been paid to the Secretary of State for distribution, but the plaintiff, who has duly qualified as the executor of the late George L. Hammeken, is unable to obtain the money, as the defendant claims an interest in it. The plaintiff therefore panys for an injunction to restrain the defoudant from receiving the money from the Secretary of State, and that he be compelled to make a discovery and show the a mount of his claim and the nature of it.

The Benefit for Mrs. Mason.

The bex-sheet at Ford's Opera-Houseshows the generosity of Mile. Rhes in tendering the se vices of herself and company and Mr. Ford is giving the house and the attaches for a perform ance for the benefit of Mrs. Sergeant Mason and ince for the benefit or Mrs. Sergeant Mason and the baby is appreciated. The play selected is "Camille," in which Mile. Rhea is seen to the bes silvantage. Those who have not seen Mile. Rhes in her wonderful impersonation of Marie Guidhies should certainly not miss the opportunity now offered. Aside from the worthy object for which the performance is given, the play itself should insure a crowded house. A handsome sum should and no doubt will be realised.

Maggie Mitchell as " The Little Savage. "The Little Savage," in which Miss Maggle Mitchell made her appearance before a most en-thusiastic audience at the National Theatre has night, was seen here for the first time and was well received. It differs largely from the plays in which Miss Mitchell has become identified, and affords decidedly more scope of the exhibition of the genuine dramatic art of which Miss Mitchell genuine dramatic art of which Miss Mitchell swessed. The story of the play is that of a up girl who, becoming an orphan at an early is adopted by a kind-hearted gentleman, who learns to regard as her father. She grows appropriate of her parents, who were wealthy of noble birth, and meets a young Frencher, with whom she falls in love and who reset her affection. He is suddenly recalled, and le he is absent the adopted father of his sweet-rides and leaves her under the care of an old ad, who is the guardian of the young ard the and leaves her under the care of an old and, who is the guardian of the young yer, for whom he has already select a wife. He supposes that the ringe had been performed before he left at the state that the selection is mored of another man, and marries him ind of obeying the wishes of the old gendleman, by the way, is an inascible old fellow, ruling subordinates by fear. In order to evade his that the young people pretend to be married acting to his wishes, and when he brings his new ge home be finds everything apparently to his
